CHINA IS TEST FOR 1981

By LAURIE SCHWAB

Do our new Socceroos have what it takes to stand up to the grind of overseas touring? Will they buckle and crack under tension? Can they stand opposition from partisan crowds?

In short — are they made of the stuff required from World Cup warriors?

If they do not have the same strength of character as our tourists of 1967 and 1973-74, they will find the going tough in China.

Lack of maturity may also go against the squad. Nine of them are in their very early twenties or teens. Twelve have not been on an extended tour before.

Coach Rudi Gutendorf will know on their return from China which players are World Cup material and which are not.

"I am committed to none of them. Those who fail me will be thrown out, but those who give everything will get my utter loyalty in return," he said this week.

"They will be my World Cup fighters in 1981."

He added he wants only players willing to make painful sacrifices to achieve success. "Anyone who is half-hearted has no place in my squad," he said.

Gutendorf tried to have Newcastle's Arno Bertogna excluded last week because Bertogna hurriedly-organised training session in Sydney.

The Australian Soccer Federation overruled him.

Gutendorf said at the time: "If Sepp Herberger (former West German national coach) had called me into his squad when I was a boy, I would have walked 100 km for the honor."

"I admired the attitude of Tony Henderson. The doctor gave him time off from training because of a slight injury, but he came down anyway to be with the boys and to do light jogging."

Henderson, Jimmy Rooney, Jim Tansey and Ivo Prskalo will be the key players on the tour due to their great experience.

They will guide Australia through at least five games in China — in Peking, Shanghai and Canton.

Possible games in Hong Kong and Indonesia were being negotiated as the Socceroos left yesterday (Tuesday).

No Australian squad has been as well endowed with talented forwards as this one.

Mark Jankovics, Gary Cole, Eddie Krncevic, Phil O'Connor, Peter Sharne, and John Nyskohus are an extraordinary contingent.

There is such strength in attack that the brilliant Ken Boden has been moved back into midfield.

Greg Woodhouse and Martyn Crook are an excellent pair of goalkeepers and the defence also looks sound, but the midfield is a little thin.

In fact, Jimmy Rooney and John Coyne are the only recognised midfielders in the squad. Of the others who can play in midfield, Bertogna and Henderson are defenders, Krncevic a forward and Joe Senkalski has yet to establish himself at this level.

But even the most inexperienced players should rise to new heights when they don the green and gold on tour. The Australian shirt always has had that effect.

The touring squad is:

Goalkeepers: Martyn Crook (West Adelaide), Greg Woodhouse (APIA).

Defenders: Kevin Mullen (Sydney City), Ivo Prskalo, Tony Henderson (Marconi), Jim Tansey (Heidelberg), Steve Perry (Brisbane City), Arno Bertogna (Newcastle KB Ltd), Bobby Russell (Adelaide City).

Midfielders: Jimmy Rooney (Heidelberg, cpt), John Coyne (Brisbane City), Joe Senkalski, Ken Boden (Newcastle KB).

Forwards: Mark Jankovics, Peter Sharne, Eddie Krncevic (Marconi), Gary Cole (Heidelberg), Tommy Cumming (Essendon Croatia), John Nyskohus (Adelaide City), Phil O'Connor (St. George).

Marconi scoops the pool

As had been expected, Marconi scooped the pool of prizes at the Australian Soccer Press Association presentation night in Adelaide last week.

Ivo Prskalo was named Player of the Year, Eddie Krncevic Best Under 21 Player and Les Scheinflug Coach of the Year.

Newcastle, Wollongong in Makedonia Cup

Teams from Newcastle, Geelong, Wollongong and Shepparton will travel to Melbourne to play in the 1979 Makedonia Cup.

The tournament for Macedonian-backed teams will be run over two days (November 10, 11) at Preston's B.T. Connor Reserve.

Twelve teams will compete for the trophy and $1,000 in prize money, with the winner earning $500, runner-up $250, third $150 and fourth $100.

Last year, the Makedonia Cup attracted about a dozen Melbourne-based Macedonian clubs. The popularity of the competition can be judged by the distances the teams are willing to travel to play in this year's event.

Coming from interstate are Wollongong Utd and Newcastle Red Star. Geelong West and Shepparton Lemnos will represent the large Victorian rural cities.

The action starts on Saturday (November 10) with four elimination matches involving teams in the bottom half of the seeded draw.

The games scheduled for Saturday are: 12.45 pm Geelong West v Central Altona 2 pm Shepparton Lemnos v Wollongong 3.15 pm Meko Holdings v Hinden 4.30 pm Makedonia 'B' v Vardar Footscray.

The winners of each elimination game will progress to the first main round, which starts on Sunday morning. The first round games on Sunday are: (1) 10.45 pm Makedonia 'A' v Geelong or Central (2) 12 noon Newcastle Red Star v Makedonia 'B' or Vardar (3) 1.15 pm Wollongong Utd v Meko or Hinden (4) 2.30 pm Keilor City v Lemnos or Pascoe Vale.

The winners of the first round games will progress to the semi finals listed for Sunday afternoon. The draw for the semi finals is: winner (1) v winner (3) and winner (2) v winner (4).

The final of the Makedonia Cup will kick off at 6.15 pm.

The rules of the competition are basically the same as normal competition soccer. Each team consists of 11 players and the games are 35 minutes each way.

The tournament organiser is Preston Makedonia soccer club. — KYLE PATTERSON

Vardar, Zagreb in December

Dinamo Zagreb and Vardar Skopje will visit Australia in December, while "Soccer Action" is in recess.

The tours were announced in "Soccer Action" some weeks ago, but itineraries are not yet finalised.

Zagreb will play its first match against Victoria at Olympic Park on Sunday, December 9.

It will play probably

Adelaide the following Wednesday and against NSW in Sydney on Sunday, December 16.

All that is known about Vardar is that the team will be here some time in December.

PRSKALO CAPS GREAT SEASON

It's been some year for Ivo Prskalo! At an age when most players think about retiring, Prskalo, 32, has had a new lease of life.

He was the rock on which Marconi built its championship success.

When the Socceroos needed a leader for their defence, they turned to Prskalo.

Then, he won the "Soccer Action" — Yugoslav Airlines Player of the Year award.

And now, he has been named Player of the Year by the Australian Soccer Press Association (ASPA).

The former Velez Mostar star who played for many years in the Yugoslav First Division, received his award at the ASPA presentation night at Adelaide's Oberoi Hotel last Thursday.

To cap his extraordinary season, Prskalo left with the Socceroos yesterday (Tuesday) on their tour of China.

Also in the party is his Marconi team mate Eddie Krncevic who was named Best Under-21 Player of 1979.

Krncevic joined Marconi from Essendon Croatia early this year and is reported to be eager to return to Melbourne for next season.

Les Scheinflug was rewarded for his efforts in guiding Marconi to the championship by being named 1979 Coach of the Year.

Scheinflug was rewarded for his efforts in guiding Marconi to the championship by being named 1979 Coach of the Year.

Scheinflug, who captained Australia in its 1965 World Cup campaign, was player-coach in 1969 when Marconi won its last championship. In between, he coached Brisbane Lions, Sydney Croatia, Western Suburbs and Adelaide City among others.

Tony Boskovic of NSW was named Referee of the Year. Boskovic, who refereed in West Germany during the 1974 World Cup finals, is only the second winner of the award.

There was no such award at the inaugural presentation night in 1977. Peter Ramplay of NSW won it in 1978.

The 1980 presentations will be in Brisbane. A new voting system will see 3-2-1 votes cast after each match. Until now, all voting has been done at the end of the season.

● Frank Pangallo talked to two players in the Socceroo squad for the tour of Asia. He discovered that one player was disappointed he wasn't selected in the team earlier, while the other didn't expect to be selected at all.

Russell to put country before the Cosmos?

Adelaide City's brilliant defender Bobby Russell is sitting on top of the world at the moment . . . and it's going to take some doing to get him off!

The amiable Scot not only won selection in the Australian squad which leaves for Asia this week but has also received an open invitation to trial with the famed New York Cosmos.

Cosmos mentor Professor Julio Mazzei paid Russell a major compliment by stating to Pressmen after the Cosmos had beaten Adelaide City 2-0 last weekend that Russell was by far the best Australian player he'd seen on the three-match tour.

"I was most impressed with his work in the defence and the way he shut Giorgio (Chinaglia) out of the game. I'd welcome him," he said.

"I said before the tour that we were on the lookout for Australian players in our team — we don't have any — and Russell is the type we're looking for."

Russell's future could be decided later this month when City coach Rale Rasic heads for New York for a three-week intensive study program with the Cosmos.

"I'm a businessman first but who could deny a player the chance of being in the same team as Beckenbauer, Neeskens, Alberto and Tuart," Rasic said.

"I think it's the ultimate compliment for a player to be asked to join the Cosmos. They're the best in the world."

The past season isn't one Russell is likely to forget for sometime.

After a relatively low-key stint with Sydney Croatia, Rasic snapped Russell for City this season. Yet it wasn't until mid-way through the season that Russell exploded onto the scene and won the admiration of both Rasic and City's legion of supporters.

Russell forced his way into the side as a full-back but before he could entrench himself in what is a very competitive squad, a shoulder injury against Marconi seemingly shattered his hopes.

When Russell recovered, he had no option but was to remain on the sidelines as City went through nine of their following 10 matches unbeaten.

Russell's humor was such that he often joked about getting blisters sitting on the bench so often. There was even a time when Rasic summoned Russell to warm up along the sidelines . . . he dutifully did so for 15 minutes and still didn't get a run!

Undaunted, Russell never lost his confidence. On the training track his contribution was never in question. Bursting to make his way back into the team, he trained twice-daily in his own time.

After almost 14 weeks in the role of bench warmer, he got his chance through an injury to former Scottish professional Jim Muir.

While he had never played anywhere else but full-back, Russell was assigned the task of playing stopper against the delicate ball skills of Newcastle's Ken Boden.

Russell outclassed Boden with an impressive display of physical aggression and powerful aerial ability — something which belies his rather shortish frame.

It wasn't surprising that Russell became an automatic selection from that point and has not blemished the trust and confidence Rasic has shown in him.

Perhaps Russell's influence could be partly attributed to City's tremendous defensive record last season. In all, only 27 goals were conceded — the lowest in the PSL.

Russell started his playing career in Scotland with the Glasgow Celtic Boys Club and from there moved to Portsmouth in England where he stayed for a couple of months before deciding he wanted to see the world.

He made his way to New Zealand and his playing career resumed once again. After a couple of seasons, he crossed the Tasman to try his luck in Sydney with Croatia.

Russell has harbored a burning desire to play for the Socceroos and set the 1982 World Cup finals in Spain as his target.

Despite his remarkable consistency late in the season, Russell admitted he was shocked at his selection in the Australian squad.

After questioning the validity of Rasic's good tidings two or three times, the chirpy Russell slumped back in a chair and a characteristic grin broke across his face: "Oh, boss . . . it's just magic!"

He clearly recalls the moment Rudi Gutendorf indicated him to shed his track suit and warm-up to take the field against Cosmos in Sydney.

With a crowd in excess of 50,000 around him, Russell's legs became "rubbery."

"It was something I had never experienced before. It was the biggest crowd I had ever faced and I was nervous," Russell recalled.

"It was completely different after I'd settled down. I knew this was my chance and I didn't want to blow it."

"I think the most important thing in football to play for your country and I've always had my heart set on playing for Australia."

"I guess I'll never forget my first appearance. You never think you'd get the chance to come up against players you idolised. Pure magic."

Russell's modesty is something else. After his fine display in the Cosmos match against City, he personally felt his game could have been better.

"Sure, I've got a lot to learn," he says frankly. "All I know is that when I'm out there, I try and give everything I've got."

Russell's solid-as-a-brick-wall image isn't characteristic of his temperament. In fact he's proud of his record of never being sent off the field or suspended.

He attributes his strong self-discipline to the fact that he plays the game for enjoyment and a sense of competitiveness.

Russell puts it this way: "I respect myself. I would not go kicking or punching anybody else."

If they kick or punch me that's OK, but they're only degrading themselves. You can earn more respect by acting like a professional."

Nobody can deny Russell has got what it takes to play at international level.

The spell has already been cast and the magic is beginning to work for him. For Bobby Russell, success is there for the taking.

Martyn Crook leaps above West Adelaide team mate Con Kambas (partly hidden) and Pat Bannon of Heidelberg to punch clear. No. 3 West's Barry Reynolds and right is Brank Buljevic.

Woodhouse a setback to my plans: Crook

In many people's eyes, it would have been a complete injustice had Martyn Crook missed selection in the Australian squad to tour Asia.

In three Phillips League seasons with West Adelaide, Crook has established himself as one of the finest goalkeepers produced in this country.

Despite Wests' inability to successfully defend its championship in 1979, Crook's form between the posts was astounding.

His snake-like reflexes and cunning perception made him the scourge of strikers who helplessly watched him do the impossible.

Crook, 22, has been the focal point of West Adelaide since he joined the club from State League side Para Hills four years ago.

He was in brilliant touch through the 1978 season and although he was freely tipped to make his way into the Socceroo squad, Rudi Gutendorf has only recently given him the chance to show his worth.

Although Crook admits he was frustrated at not making the Socceroos last year, he thought he'd eventually get his chance if he kept "plugging away."

"I thought my form was good enough in 1978 to be given a chance and I was a little disappointed at being overlooked," Crook said.

"I knew if I kept plugging away I'd get there but then Greg Woodhouse came along and I've had to start all over again."

"I'm happy I've got the chance now and I guess I've got something to prove."

Crook had an indifferent start to the 1979 season and prefers to forget a few of those opening matches.

However he believes his last eight or so games of last season were as good as he has ever played.

Indeed, in those bone-crunching derbies against Adelaide City Crook's uncanny acrobatics made Dixie Deans and Socceroo team-mate John Nyskohus shake their heads in disbelief as what appeared to be open goals vanished in thin air!

Crook began his soccer career with Para Hills as a youngster, playing at left half!

As Crook recalls, it wasn't until he saved a penalty at training that his coach decided he'd make a good goalkeeper.

Crook himself can't explain his natural goalkeeping talent.

Martyn Crook, the weekend acrobat and Australia's new goalkeeper.

"I guess it is just one of those things you do," he says nonchalantly.

"You can't coach a goalkeeper to be good. I think natural ability comes first and coaching second," he explains.

"I've never really been coached in the art of goalkeeping. A lot is self-taught."

"Even now I don't think I get as much training in goalkeeping as I should."

Crook headed for the UK two years ago to trial with Middlesbrough, but was disenchanted and decided to return to Adelaide where he was building a house and about to open a sporting goods store.

"At the time I thought my future remained in Australia," said Crook.

"I don't know whether I'd want to play overseas. I'd prefer to build my future in Australia."

One of the real success stories of Australian Soccer has been Newcastle KB United's entry to the Philips Soccer League of Australia.

In just two years since the club was granted entry, Newcastle United has captured the imagination of soccer enthusiasts around the country.

KB United's coach, Alan Vest, speaks about some of the early problems, the triumphs and the hopes of the club in this exclusive interview with NBN television soccer commentator, DAVID FORDHAM.

ALAN VEST: PSL TITLE OUR AIM

Alan Vest — coach Newcastle KB United

Q. Alan, considering this time two years ago the Squad was not even assembled, you must be very pleased with the progress the club has made in such a short time.

A. Yes, the club has made tremendous progress, David. We knew we would have problems when we first started. We knew it was going to be a hard road, and I think we have overcome most of them and obviously the next aim is to make Newcastle a championship team.

Q. Looking back to those early days, there was a tremendous objection, particularly from the Melbourne clubs, to United's entry into the league. The A.S.F. with hindsight must be very pleased that they made the right decision to include a then "fledgling" club.

A. I think the main criticism was that we were not going to be able to pay enough money to attract players who could do well in the Philips League. Obviously we have dispelled those images, but it is a hard road and it's getting harder financially because we have to get better players and we live to try to keep our own players in line as far as we can with the payments of other players. As you know in some cases, this is virtually impossible.

Q. Finance has been a problem from day one, despite the sizeable sponsorship grant from Tooth & Co., but what was the club's initial outlay for the 1978 KB squad?

A. The initial outlay for the first year was around $25,000 to $26,000, which is not a lot of money by any club's standards.

Q. In 1978, I had around $10,000 to retain all the signed, plus get new players, which included air fares and their signing on fees. A lot of clubs would spend a quarter of a million dollars to acquire their team for a season.

Q. In those early days there was the $8000 transfer fee for Col Curran from Sydney's Western Suburbs, and that figure itself you regarded as quite an outlandish transfer fee, but no doubt the value of Col Curran to your team has more than paid its way.

A. Yes, promotionally and particularly this year, Col has had a very good season. My only argument is that I'm sure if we had left it another couple of weeks we could have got Col for half the price. Money was vital at that particular stage, but nevertheless, it's proved money well spent.

Q. You have always had the ultimate say as far as signings are concerned...but Curran's signing and also Joe Senkalski's later in the year from Sydney Olympic at a cost of around $5000, were virtually "Director's signings". I What are your thoughts on this?

A. Now, they weren't really director's signings. If I had said that I didn't want either player, then neither player would have been at Newcastle United. There's no question about that. On both occasions, as you know, the club had given me a budget to sign players and I have got to sign a full squad on that. At the stage of these signings, the financial position of the club was critical, and my job, I believe is to "Balance the Books" as well as getting the team on the park.

Q. Take the case of Kenny Boden. There's no question, I would like to have kept him, but I can see the need for selling him for the financial benefit of the club.

A. And that was my argument, basically, about the signings of Curran and Senkalski.

There was no question about not wanting them, but I felt that both of them could have come our way for less money had we bided our time. If I hadn't wanted these players, there's no way they would have been at the club.

Q. You mentioned that for less than $30,000 you assembled a squad of players who were virtually "unknowns" but they have certainly made their impact on Australia soccer. Players like Kenny Boden, Bill Summerscales and Roy Drinkwater in particular have proved that point.

A. With the new restrictions on visas...if those restrictions had been on in 1978, there's no way those players would have been in Australia. I think it is a very sad state of affairs for the same.

Q. Looking at the Australian soccer scene since you made the move from New Zealand, there are certain "sicknesses" about the game. Since the inception of the Philips League in 1977, there have been in excess of 50 coaches employed by the 14 P.S.L. teams. What do you think the problems are there?

A. There's only one problem, David, and that's the powers that be. The committees of the clubs appoint people and they don't give them the job to do. Newcastle has given me the job to do and if I fail, I'll be sacked. I appreciate that, as does every coach.

Q. Even with the recent Kenny Boden transfer, I have never even spoken to the manager/coach of Sydney City. It was the president who did the dealings there. We did the deal, sealed it, written agreements by both clubs. But then the president of the club came back and wanted to rescind the deal and give me more money for the player instead of the previous agreement. It was simply because spectators had got onto some of the other committee members who in turn had got onto the president of the club.

Q. Looking back on your one, it was an instant success from the first day against the league champions Eastern Suburbs "Hakoah", when over 15,000 people flocked through the turnstiles. Did you or the club envisage the continued success story from that day?

A. No, I thought we would get a very good crowd for the first game. We were a new thing. It was a big thing for the City, but really, we were anticipating a three or four thousand crowd as an average, even with a mediocre team.

Q. The performance on the park in year one, despite the fact you finished eleventh in the League, still must have pleased you. You added that historic win over Dulce, to become the first Australian club side to inflict a defeat on a top side from the U.K. and you also grabbed a place in the semi-finals of the Philips Cup. Were you satisfied with the performance of the team in that first year?

A. As I have said all along, the first year to me was successful. If you analyse the league for last year and the league this year, we were four points from the top four last year. Now this year we finished sixth and the one below us was seven points from us.

Q. So even in the first year we were there or thereabouts, and believe me the team wasn't good enough. We know that! But that's all we could afford and a lot of hard work went into the club to achieve what we did.

Q. Alan, how would you describe your team...it isn't a brilliant team is it?

A. It's not a brilliant side at all...I don't believe we have any real stars, although obviously Kenny Boden proved something of a revelation. It's a team game, we thrive on team spirit and that's everything, particularly away from home.

Q. We have just had an end-of-season trip to Townsville and the lads really bonded themselves together...The team spirit is unbelievable. It's better than anything I have ever come across. I think it's got a lot to do with the parochial town and crowd and they know they have to pull together to achieve anything.

Q. What effect has the crowd had on the team as far as pre-game dressing room activities are concerned... They must be tremendously aware of the home town support?

A. I think it has a big bearing on the team, but not as much as a lot of people imagine. Where I have played at places that have a big and parochial support it's made me play better myself. That of course is the opposite team, and I'm sure that it events itself up when teams come to Newcastle, because when they come here they thrive on the atmosphere. Even if the crowd is booing them, that stimulates them.

Q. I know when I have been "away" at grounds in England, and the crowd has got onto me, that has stimulated me to do better than I had done before. But undeniably our boys thrive on the home crowd involvement.

Q. You are hell bent on improving your pool for 1980. There are a lot of players from other P.S.L. teams that have shown interest in joining your squad, but funds are still obviously a problem. Last year you returned to England to sign new players, and some of these proved instant successes. One of them was Ian Seddon. How important a loss was he? He was the real "general" of the midfield before injuring his achilles tendon.

A. It was a big loss...probably Ian or somebody like him was just the player we needed. We have a lot of young lads and we needed that extra experience at that particular time. We had done well and really needed him. As you know, he never played for the club again this season, and that was a big blow.

Q. You have shown a willingness to experiment with players out of their normal positions, particularly when injuries have been a problem...players like John Seddon and Arno Bertogna are basically defenders but were used regularly as midfield players with a degree of success. Has the versatility of the pool helped your campaign?

A. Yes, any player who can play in more than one position is a valuable asset to the club. If they are a "one position" player, then they are limited in what value they are to the team.

Q. As young Brett Cowburn said in an interview after a game, he didn't care what position he played, providing he was in the team. I don't think it does a player any harm playing in different positions and getting different feeling of the opposition. I think if we can get more players who are flexible the game will benefit.

Q. Iake Holland for example in the last World Cup. I think any of their players could play in any position...they were complete footballers.

Q. This town is very much a parochial city and the initial feeling with the English imports in the original squad was that they would not be accepted as Newcastle players. But now they have been accepted and you would think from the crowd reaction that Kenny Boden and Roy Drinkwater were Newcastle born and bred. In those early days, was there any animosity or feeling in the squad between the English imports and the local players?

A. It was a problem and a hard one to overcome. There was no question about it. There was an Australian group and an English group and I think if there had been any criticism in the town, the Australian group would have been there and talking about that criticism. Last year they would have agreed with it.

Q. Now this year the reverse has happened. If somebody said anything about an English player to the local lads, they would more than likely end up with a "Glasgow kiss". That's the situation at the moment, the spirit is sky high. You can ask any of the Aussie lads and they would agree wholeheartedly with that.

Q. The success this year in reaching the semi-final of the cup again and narrowly missing out on the P.S.L. top four, shows that the clubs performance has greatly improved, but you still have problems as far as the lineup is concerned, haven't you?

A. I think you always have problems as far as a team is concerned. Now, Marconi won the league this year but there's no doubt they will sign new players next year. It's rumoured they will sign Tommy Cumming, but where they are going to play him is another point.

Q. Although they have a good side, they still strive to improve. Now we are no different. Our aim this year was to do better than in 1978 and for next year it's exactly the same. I do that, we have to get one or two better players.

Q. How severely will Kenny Boden's loss be felt by the club, with his transfer to Sydney City?

A. Well, obviously any player of Kenny's ability and calibre would be a loss to any club. But life goes on. Top players from clubs in other parts of the world leave and the club still goes well. Kevin Keegan went from Liverpool for a then record fee. He was their top player. But they put somebody else in and they were still the league champions. None of us are irreplaceable, but we are going to miss Kenny. He's done a wonderful job for Newcastle United.

Q. Alan, you have no doubt been sounded out by other P.S.L. clubs in Australia and from clubs outside Australia, and no doubt bigger financial rewards have been mentioned. Why then have you renewed your contract with KB United in 1980?

A. Well, the club has offered me a new contract. They wanted me to sign a two or three year contract, but I declined to do that. I feel that after three years there has to be a re-assessment by the club and myself. But I have enjoyed it with Newcastle. I think we have achieved a lot and I would like to give it one more year and achieve the ultimate with the league championship in 1980, and given a little luck on closed season signings, I think we have got a big chance. And that's why I stayed with Newcastle.

Q. As far as new signings are concerned, have you any definite thoughts at this stage?

A. Hopefully, I will be signing a back four next week. He's an ex-England international who should improve our side greatly.

Q. Another player I will be talking to is a midfield player who played for Ireland and another experienced player...and these are the players I want.

Q. We have several up-and-coming young players and blended with that type of experience, we can have a top side. With the transfer of Kenny Boden we have secured Sydney City's Mark Trenter and I will be looking to sign another striker as well.

Q. You mentioned your immediate aim is to win the league championship in 1980...but what are your long-term ambitions in football?

A. I think any coach's ambition would be to become the national coach...but I think that is a very remote possibility now. I see myself staying in Australia. I've had offers to try my hand in Scandinavia, but whether I eventually do that I don't know at this stage. I'll have to wait and see what happens next year.

Q. My family in particular would rather stay in Australia, so it looks as though I'll spend the rest of my soccer career in Australia.

Q. Finally, in the three years you have been in Australia have you seen any dramatic improvement in our standards?

A. I think it has improved a lot and I think it will go on improving, providing people don't get too carried away.

Q. We are trying to impress on the public that players are better than they are. Unfortunately, we run a lot of young players by telling them they are "superstars" when obviously they are not. We've got a lot of potential but let's keep our feet on the ground. If we look anywhere in the world, at youth level, England in particular, very few make the grade.

Q. I would say Australia is no different.

Sydney City — nicknamed the 'Slickers' after

Trenter the hero in farewell game

it changed its name from Hakoah Eastern Suburbs — is the only club to win a major trophy in each of the three seasons since the formation of the Phillips Soccer League.

This prestigious and unique record was established after Sydney City won the 1979 PSL Grand Final in Brisbane last Sunday with a 2-1 aggregate win over Brisbane City.

Sydney City drew the second leg match 1-1, which was enough to secure the trophy after the club's 1-0 victory over Brisbane City in the first leg of the final in Sydney.

Sydney City won the PSL championship in 1977, the Grand Final in 1978 and completing the hat-trick with this season's Grand Final victory.

Ironically, Brisbane City would have become the first club to win a trophy in each season if it had defeated Sydney City. Brisbane City won the Phillips Cup in 1977 and '78.

Brisbane City, although beaten in the two-leg final, thus re-affirmed its reputation of also being one of the most successful clubs since the PSL began.

The Brisbane team in fact went within six minutes of prolonging the final, when it led 1-0 with that period remaining.

But striker Mark Trenter, playing his last game for the Slickers before switching to Newcastle next season, went out in a blaze of glory by snatching an equaliser which in effect was the winner.

Midfielder John Stevenson attempted to bypass City keeper Kim Wishart with a chip shot, and it appeared to be travelling harmlessly out for a goal-kick.

But the ball lost momentum, and Trenter, who had done little also during the match, nipped in to shove his shot towards the goal.

It dropped just short and as David Ratcliffe and Wishart desperately tried to work the ball away from the danger zone, Trenter, who by now was on the ground, stuck his leg out and poked the ball home.

Brisbane City had scored its goal in the 78th minute, after long periods during which it threatened, but never seemed really capable of cracking the dedicated Sydney City defence.

Roberto Echeverria lost possession on the right, but Ratcliffe won it back, and provided him with the chance to cross.

He did so and Kevin Low flicked it on towards the far post, where Barry Kelso charged in to side-foot past a helpless Todd Clarke.

It was one of the few occasions that Clarke ever looked in trouble. He had a faultless match, was superb and courageous in the air, but it must be remembered that Brisbane City regularly played into his hands by pumping long balls onto the six yard line.

Clarke emerged as the man of the match, but not far behind were Kevin Mullen, Eddie Thomson, Steve O'Connor and John Stevenson.

Many of the Brisbane City players had spells when they could not do a thing right, mainly in regard to their passing, but reliable were skipper Steve Perry, Ratcliffe and midfielder Frank Pimblett.

Overall, the match did not provide a great spectacle footballwise. There was too much tension, particularly in the first half and naturally a good deal of niggles, which generally was well handled by Adelaide referee Don Campbell.

As a result, there were not many clear cut scoring chances in the first half.

The best however, fell to Brisbane City, when Kelso hit the post in the 36th minute. Low made a burst down the left and passed to Bobby Campbell, who in turn fed Larry Gaffney.

Gaffney's shot was partially blocked by Clarke, and as legs kicked wildly, Kelso had a shot which deflected off the left hand upright.

Brisbane City pummeled the Sydney defence for the first 15 minutes of the second half, and it was in this period that the home side really had to score to take command of the match.

Campbell and Kelso caused a good deal of havoc and from one move, Kelso dashed down the left and Campbell's first time shot was deflected away by a diving Clarke. Kelso was a foot away from converting the chance.

Mullen pepped up the Sydney City attack with several forceful runs and one of them ended when he was charged down by Echeverria, suspiciously close to the penalty area.

Mullen broke again, crossed a good square ball, but substitute Marcos Silva and Trenter took far too long to make something out of it, and the defence came back quickly to cut them off.

A searching Pimblett break and cross had the Sydney City defence in trouble and a few players had shots blocked before John Coyne thrashed his left footer wide.

Soon after, Brisbane City scored, there were signs that the team could carry on with the job and win by the necessary two goal margin, when another tremendous Pimblett header grazed the upright.

Mullen certainly displayed a sign of panic when he crudely cut the flying Kelso down along the left touchline. The tackle and Kelso's retaliation, earned both a yellow card, out of a total of five shown during the game.

But the extra goal Brisbane City needed did not eventuate, and when Trenter finally scored in what seemed slow motion, the Top Four championship went to Sydney for another year.

Triumph for Gardiner

Victorian State League Cup final

MAKEDONIA 1

Scorers: Makedonia — Ward 8th, Croatia — Gardiner 43rd, Gilder 61st.

Ground: Olympic Park.
Crowd: Est. 6000.
Weather: Humid.
Referee: Chris Bambridge 6.
Cautions: Short (C), Blavier (C).

Ratings:
ESSENDON CROATIA: Blaisy 6 — Short 8, Gardiner 9.5, Kokoska 8.5, Blavier 7 — Adams 7, Andrews 7, Murphy 8 — Cumming 7.5, Gilder 8, Bainovics 7.

PRESTON MAKEDONIA: Kestner 6 — Petrovski 8, Higham 8, Garthwaite 6, Bosch 6 — Flaville 6, Cumming 5 (Rainey 73rd min), Faulkner 6.5 (Tuffield 73rd min) — Cullen 6, Lesbirel 7, WSad 6.

Preston Makedonia tried to buy John Gardiner early this season, but Essendon Croatia rejected the $4000 offer.

Gardiner was later to spend several months out of soccer after Croatia placed him on the transfer list following a row with the club's administration.

But Gardiner reconciled with Croatia, which was just as anxious to end the dispute, and returned to the team he had built into a powerful combination in 1978.

Last Sunday's Victorian State League Cup final proved Croatia's decision not to sell Gardiner to be a wonderful piece of foresight.

At the same time, Preston Makedonia must have felt sick to see Gardiner, the man it wanted for its team, inspiring and commanding Croatia to a powerful 2-1 Cup final victory over Preston.

Gardiner is the mastermind behind Croatia's dominance of the Victorian State League. The Cup victory on Sunday took to six the number of trophies Croatia has won in the past two seasons.

Most of the credit for the two championship, two State League Cup, Dockerty Cup and

By KYLE PATTERSON

Ampol Cup successes should go to Gardiner, the coach and on-field organiser.

Anyone who saw last Sunday's State League Cup final will at least vouch that Gardiner was the key figure in Croatia's most recent triumph.

He was superb at sweeper throughout the game, and formed a solid partnership with centre back Steve Kokoska. When Croatia fell behind, it was Gardiner who pushed forward into the midfield, searching for an opening.

His moves into attack paid dividends in the 43rd minute when he equalised for Croatia with a 30-metre shot.

In the second half, it was Gardiner who carved out the opening which won Croatia the game. He hit a great long ball for striker Tommy Cumming, and Preston's Ljube Petrovski had to foul Cumming to stop the Croatia forward.

From the resultant free kick, from near the corner flag, Carl Gilder leaped above a ruck of players to head Essendon's 61st minute winner.

Gilder, incidentally, scored Croatia's winner in last season's State League Cup final against George Cross.

Although trailing after Preston's Gary Ward scored a goal in the eighth minute, Croatia was always the better team, and never looked in danger of losing the match.

Croatia had many fine players. Gardiner was best on the ground, with Kokoska not far behind, Gilder, Cumming, Ken Murphy and Steve Short had sound games, with the rest of the players in the team all contributing.

Preston was lacklustre. It defended for long periods with a blanket of players on the backline. The midfield was never creative, and the forwards found themselves stranded with no support.

John Higham and Ljube Petrovski did well in defence, and Gordon Flaville at least worried Croatia, albeit using niggling tactics and robust challenges.

Preston looked disorganised, and until the team finds some of the team work shown by Croatia, it will remain a bridesmaid.

The Cup final was a torrid affair. Tempers frayed, and players got involved in off-ball pushing and shoving matches.

Preston got off to a great start when Ward scored with a glancing header in the eighth minute. Petrovski had hit a long cross from the right, and it may have presented no danger had not Croatia goalkeeper Peter Blaisy rushed off his line to catch the ball.

Blaisy committed himself, but was stranded as Ward nipped in to divert the ball into the net.

After that move, Preston hardly ventured near the Croatia goal. Essendon stormed into attack, with full backs Steve Short and Ante Blavier charging down the wings.

Gardiner was supporting the attack from the sweeper position, and Croatia bombarded the Preston goal. Preston pulled eight players back into defence, and attempted to weather the storm.

The blanket defence smothered Cumming and Gilder, but Croatia was bound to score. The vital goal came when Murphy carried the ball wide, then slipped it to Cumming. He ran in-field and passed to Gardiner, whose first-time shot beat Lou Kestner.

After the interval, Croatia changed its tactics slightly. Instead of racing headlong into attack to try and bust the Preston defensive wall, Croatia slowed the game up.

It kept possession in a bid to draw Preston out of defence and to create openings for the Essendon forwards.

Gilder's goal forced Preston to take the initiative and attack Croatia in a bid to save the game. The team improved when Ian Tuffield and Mike Rainey replaced Stuart Cunningham and Jeff Faulkner, but not sufficiently to worry Croatia.

After 2nd title, Croatia may lose top men

The State League Cup final is the last official domestic fixture in Victoria, ending the nine-month long season.

Of course, competitive matches are played for 10 months of the year if practice games and end of season tours by overseas clubs are taken into consideration.

This is part two of a review of Victorian State League clubs, featuring Frankston City, Croydon City, Essendon Croatia and Preston Makedonia. Part one of the review focused on the clubs that hadn't qualified for the top four series.

Unfortunately, because of publication deadlines, the result of the State League Cup isn't included in this review, but full details of the match appear elsewhere in this issue.

ESSENDON CROATIA

Position finished: 1st
1979 coaches: Brian Edgley, Dujie Zemanik, John Gardiner
Home ground: Olympic Park
Years in State League: 3
1979 honors: League championship, Dockerty Cup
Last honor: Dockerty Cup 1979

Essendon Croatia started the 1979 season with a severe hangover from the previous year. Success is hard to find, and harder to keep, as Croatia was to discover.

To refresh memories, Croatia won the 'treble' in 1978 — the league championship, Ampol Cup and State League Cup. The team reached the quarter-finals of the Phillips Cup and the semi-finals of the Dockerty Cup.

At the beginning of this season, Croatia immediately had troubles with discontent players. Eddie Krncevic and Yacka Banovic left to club for the national league, and Billy Gijtek, Dave Lesan, Alan Kerr and Brian Davidson for various reasons.

Ken Murphy and John Gardiner asked for transfers early in the season, Croatia performed poorly in the Ampol Cup, and had, by the club's own standards, an average start to the championship.

At one stage, it looked as though Croatia would not win an honor in 1979, but then something clicked. Coach Brian Edgley succumbed to pressure and resigned, paving the way for a partnership between John Gardiner and Dujie Zemanik to lead the team.

Gardiner, without doubt, is the key figure in Croatia's resurgence of the State League in 1978-79. His return as a player and coach brought about a revival for Essendon.

Croatia picked Frankston on a goal difference for the championship, and took the Dockerty Cup in another close decision. Gritty performances in the State League Cup took Croatia to the final, and set the team up for an amazing second treble.

The Essendon club now faces the problem of holding onto players like Tommy Cumming, Carl Gilder and Steve Kokoska, who would be most welcome in the Phillips League.

Croatia could let them go, and rebuild the team with the money received — but this is highly unlikely. Croatia is thinking of entering the race for PSL membership, and so will try to hold all its players.

There are great problems facing the club in its bid for PSL status. Croatia hasn't a suitable home ground (Olympic Park can't be described as a 'home' ground), and will face pressure to change its name before its PSL application is taken seriously.

Meanwhile, the 1980 State League season will see another battle of 'Croatia v the rest of the league'. Essendon has already defeated the 'rest' in successive years, so why not a hat-trick.

Position finished: 2nd
1979 coaches: Freddy Bunce, Tony Young

Home ground: McClelland Drive

Years in State League: 3

1979 honors: nil

Last honor: Second Division championship 1985

Greed is perhaps a necessary quality of a successful soccer team. The players that are desperate to win every game and as much glory as possible for themselves and their club are vital to win them than throw them away.

Frankston lost the championship on goal difference, and were less than a minute away from winning the Dockerty Cup before Essendon Croatia stormed home to 'steal' the Cup.

Many people at Frankston are bitter because the team failed to win a trophy, putting blame on the players and sacked coach Fred Bunce. However, I don't believe this is fair.

The players did have the desire to succeed, and to feel bitter towards the players or former coach Bunce is out of line. Frankston City was a 'success' in 1979, no matter what anyone thinks of it.

Before this season, Frankston was just another State League club. Now, because of the efforts of the players and coach Freddy Bunce, Frankston is on the map.

I'm sure many people at Frankston will be saying: "But we had Martin Peters and Eamon Bannon, and bought seven other players. We should have done better."

Wrong. Money is vital to a soccer team, but you can't buy success.

CROYDON CITY

Position finished: 4th

1979 coaches: Mike Plunkett, Norm Hobson

Home ground: Croydon Park

Years in State League: 1

1979 honors: nil

Last honor: Federation Cup 1979

Croydon City's first season in the Victorian State League went according to plan. At the start of the season, the newly-promoted club indicated it was aiming to finish in the top four, and this goal was achieved.

There were a few hitches along the way, but what club doesn't have hassles in the State League. Croydon has one of the best administrations in the league, and is without a doubt, the best equipped first-year club to come into the State League in the last 10 years.

Croydon City perhaps a valuable lesson from Albion Rovers. Albion won promotion in 1977 with a moderate team, and then started to recruit heavily once in the State League in 1978. The recruiting was costly and contributed to Albion getting into financial difficulties, losing many players on free transfers and precipitated the club's relegation in 1979.

The Croydon club was shrewd enough to build a State League-standard team in 1978, when still in the First Division. Top players like Joe Tront, Pat Lowrey, Alan Pongho, Steve McCombe, Jimmy Spink and Duncan Smith were brought to the club in 1978, and subsequently formed the basis of the 1979 team.

Before this season, Frankston was just another State League club. Now, because of the efforts of the players and coach Freddy Bunce, Frankston is on the map.

I'm sure many people at Frankston will be saying: "But we had Martin Peters and Eamon Bannon, and bought seven other players. We should have done better."

Wrong. Money is vital to a soccer team, but you can't buy success.

The plan has been highly successful, and has established Croydon as a leading Victorian club. Now, to stay at the top, Croydon must acquire at least two players because the squad is down to the bare minimum.

During the season, at one stage or another, Pat Lowrey, Roy Hamilton, Charlie Kelly and Duncan Smith left the club, leaving coach Norm Hobson with limited resources.

And the hassles Croydon had? There was a coaching change when Mike Plunkett resigned, and the arrival of Hobson prompted Lowrey to walk out for 'personal reasons'.

Still, Croydon can be well pleased by the club's efforts in 1979.

QUOTES OF THE YEAR

By Kyle Patterson

Some controversial and colorful stories have appeared in 'Soccer Action' this year. Here is a selection of quotes which captured the interest of readers throughout the season.

"South Melbourne acted in good faith, and if there was any difficulty with his clearance, one would think that we would have been told soon after he (Tony Turner) joined us, not at this late stage." — DAVE MACLAREN, then manager of South Melbourne. Good faith or not, Souths lost three points and slumped to the bottom of the ladder the Tony Turner affair.

"Hednesford happened to sign a goalkeeper who played with Ringwood City in Melbourne. Hednesford talked to the English FA and discovered they needed an international clearance... then they thought of me (Turner) in Australia, and that's how the whole thing blew up." — TONY TURNER explaining how the English FA 'blew the whistle' on South Melbourne.

"I've long been an embarrassment to Maclaren because he thought I was a threat to him... before the season started I told him face to face that he was a very good manager, but had short comings as a coach." — JACK REILLY, the goalkeeper 'sacked' by Maclaren. The Turner affair and Reilly's dismissal led to Maclaren resigning as South Melbourne manager.

"I'd have to go first, and I have no intention of going. Maclaren has my confidence and that of my committee." — SAM PAPASAVAS, South Melbourne president. He declared his support for Maclaren, but it was of little use as pressure mounted against South's leaders.

"It was a waste of time coaching under the circumstances. I was sick of all the rumours, and was quite happy when it came to a head. The club has been in a mess all year, and there's no way the problems can be solved quickly." — DUNCAN MCKAY, the former South Melbourne coach. McKay, who replaced Margaris, was replaced by John Margaris, delivered this blast after being forced to resign.

"I can't see much hope down there. I want to go and play some good football." — ALUN EVANS, who demanded a transfer from South Melbourne, but later relented and stayed.

"There were some nasty clashes at training between players — including Craig Hall and Ian Rowden, and Rudi Gutendorf, the coach... the players complained of the heavy training schedule and strict discipline." — PEDRO BLANCA, 'Soccer Action's' South American correspondent, who covered the Australian under-19 team's tour of Paraguay. The tour certainly was controversial and the young 'Roos bombed out.

"At the moment, the players' fitness is far from good enough. Some are still slightly overweight, and that's catastrophic to put it mildly." — RUDI GUTENDORF, national coach. Gutendorf claimed players were unfit after an Australian XI was outplayed by a local Yugoslav selection.

"Club coaches will do their best to help Gutendorf... but it's disturbing when he (Gutendorf) rushes into print without consulting us first." —

GERRY CHALDI, coach of Sydney City. Chaldi was most upset by Gutendorf's claims of lack of fitness among players.

"By the last game, everyone was half dead. I couldn't move, but still Rudi shouted at me to put more effort in. It was torture..." — ALAN DAVIDSON, Australian youth international. He was commenting on a youth team training session, during which the squad played three full games in one day.

"I saw Rampanti go off the field for no apparent reason; it was not because of anything he was told by his coach, the referee or team mates. It was an insult to me as national coach to sit in the stands and watch a star import setting such a bad example... I insist his behavior be investigated." — RUDI GUTENDORF, commenting on the alleged 'walk off' by APIA midfielder Rosario Rampanti in Canberra.

"There was nothing unusual. Rampanti was injured... anyway, what right has Gutendorf to judge on such a matter?" — NICK PAPALLO, APIA president.

"Coaching is about making players better, but many senior coaches, even at high-standard club level, don't know the basics." — LEN MCKENDRY, Victorian State coach. This comment caused a stir among many leading PSL and State League coaches.

"Teams should be selected on form. The in-form players deserve to be included (in the Victorian team), but at present they haven't got a chance." — BRANKO BULJEVIC, the Heidelberg Utd striker. His comments reflected many players' frustrations at the Victorian team being a 'closed shop'.

"Many great players have passed through the ranks at St. George and, to be honest, some bad mistakes were made in letting some of these players leave." — MANFRED SHAEFER, the former St. George great. Manfred hit the nail on the head, for St. George struggled to avoid relegation while Mark Jankovics, the former St. George player, was top goalscorer in the PSL.

"Dave tended to be friends with some players but didn't want to have much to do with the rest. He treated them as soccer players who were there to do something for him, and bugger everything else." — MURRAY BARNES, Sydney City's international midfielder. Barnes made these biting comments about Dave Maclaren, his former coach at Sydney City.

"I told him the figure (that Australian players were earning for the 1974 World Cup) and he (Gerd Mueller) was quite shocked. He told me he earned that much for each day during the World Cup." — MANFRED SHAEFER, recalling his on-field discussions with West German's top forward during the World Cup finals in 1974.

"Adam had a way with the players at West Adelaide. You could feel it just prior to the game when Jim would go around to each player and have a quick word. The team would come together and an incredible spirit was created." — PETER BOYLE, the West Adelaide midfielder. Jim Adam's magic touch lifted Wests to the championship in 1978, but at APIA in 1979 he didn't have the same luck.

"The VSF is protecting the transfer system and its own finances at the expense of clubs, which have their hands tied behind their backs."

— RUSSELL WILSON, president of Victorian club Albion Rovers. Wilson reckoned that in order to avoid legal hassles with players challenging the transfer system, the VSF would make it easy for them to leave their clubs. Wilson deplored this attitude.

"You can't cover incompetence with fitness... Sunshine hasn't been winning games because it has a mediocre team, not because the players aren't fit." — BILL WALSH, former Sunshine City coach. Walsh resigned after a delegation of players complained to the club's committee that the team lacked fitness.

"A lot of these so-called experienced players who are bought by clubs, are money hungry and disloyal. They're not really interested in playing for the club, just making as much money as possible." — JOHNNY SANCHEZ, the former George Cross and Slavia star. Sanchez spoke his mind as more and more clubs went into debt trying to meet the weekly wage bill of players.

"When a player takes money raised by hard-working committeemen and supporters, it doesn't matter a scrap, if he's part-time or not. He must repay those people by playing at his best, keeping his body in good condition and accepting the decisions of the coach." — BRIAN EDGLEY, former coach of Essendon Croatia. Edgley faced the problem of having an unsettled squad, and eventually resigned.

"I had the Croatia (coaching) position if I wanted it, but I'm happy with Altona. Anyone would be tempted to join the league champion, but I'm much better off where I am." — JOE WILSON, former coach of Altona City. Maybe Joe regrets that decision after Croatia won the league championship and the Dockerty Cup.

"We will not allow the conflict between the Macedonian and the British players to continue. A team needs harmony both on and off the field, and Preston must get rid of the problem or the club will waste another year." — TONY VRZINA, manager of Preston Makedonia. Vrzina didn't publicly name the players involved, but soon after midfielder John Bernard was placed on the transfer list.

"Any coach who doesn't want advice from a man like myself, with more experience than most coaches around, is obviously off his head." — JOHN VAN HOBOKEN Sen., the Ringwood City president. The outspoken van Hoboken shares a view held by many club administrators, that interference can only benefit a coach.

"If Joe Picione wants to play in World Cup games, that's the way he'll have to play." — Victorian State coach was instructed to play defensively while the national coach was instructing even his defenders to attack.

"Tommy Cumming is getting protection from referees because he is an international player. His reputation in Victoria seems to overawe the referees." — BILL MCARTHUR, coach of Albion Rovers. Protection or no protection, Cumming won his second Rothmans Medal (decided on referees' votes) to add to his two Bill Fleming Medals for the best and fairest Victorian State League player.

"I was sick of the strain and interference. I knew the club was hunting for my head, and I was tempted to quite before now. But I made up my mind to quit after the game (against Frankston) regardless of the result." — BRIAN EDGLEY, speaking after his resignation as coach of Essendon Croatia.

"All the players should apologise to the public for the performance at Wentworth Park. It was just about the worst exhibition of soccer I have witnessed in years." — RALE RASIC, coach of Adelaide City. Rasic was disgusted at the standard of the Adelaide City v. APIA game and blasted the players. Maybe more coaches should pay more attention to entertainment.

"The PSL is rapidly losing all credibility. No one can believe anything anymore. The league is clearly unstable, badly organised and unprogressive..." — TONY VRZINA, manager/coach of Preston Makedonia. He delivered this blast before the stunning Olympic relegation decision, which further dented the credibility of the PSL and the ASF.

"We have had the same coaches in Melbourne for too long. It's about time a few ex-players were given a go to inject some new blood into local soccer." — RAY POCOCK, who in his first season as a coach lifted Western Suburbs to the top of the Victorian First Division and won the club a place in the State League for 1980.

"The behavior of the Preston supporters was disgusting. If that's how they react when the team draws, I'd hate to see what happens when they lose." — a Croydon City official, who hit out after a crowd disturbance after the Croydon City v. Preston Makedonia game.

"Are we afraid of New Zealand, or was national coach Rudi Gutendorf reported incorrectly when he told journalists in Newcastle that results do not matter, as long as the Socceroos get as many games as possible against top opposition?" — RALE RASIC, former national coach hitting out at national coach Gutendorf for backing out of a return game against New Zealand after a 0-1 loss in Auckland during 1979.

"Quite obviously we've (New Zealand) got a good team, and if we beat Australia again, I think coach Rudi Gutendorf would be looking for a new job." — CHARLIE DEMPSEY, the tours director of the New Zealand FA. His jibes towards Gutendorf summed up New Zealand feelings towards Australia over the reluctance to play a return game.

"Playing for Australia against Czechoslovakia, England and Scotland next year is a great temptation, but I can't feed my family by playing for the national team." — STUART BAXTER, former South Melbourne defender. Baxter had a choice of touring China with the Socceroos and perhaps going on to play in the World Cup finals, or accepting a lucrative contract in Sweden. Much to the disappointment of Rudi Gutendorf, Baxter decided to leave.

"There's not a defender in the PSL who can catch me. I know I'm not one of the greatest dribblers ever seen, but then again I don't try to beat two and three men at a time. I can knock a ball past a defender, and there's no way he'll recover." — GARY COLE, the highly-confident striker of Heidelberg Utd. Cole had good reason to boast as he had another excellent season, being the spearhead of Heidelberg, Victoria and Australia. He's the all-time top goalscorer of the PSL.

"The reason we didn't sign Shaya Feigenbaum was the harsh treatment he received in the games he played for Hakoah (St. Kilda). Hakoah doesn't want to see a top class player wiped out by butchers who call themselves defenders." — DENNIS KRONGOLD, chairman of Hakoah Melbourne. Feigenbaum, the Israeli international, had a short stay in Australia soccer.

One of my favourite quotes of 1979 unfortunately didn't make it into print. Of course, many quotes don't make it into print because they are libellous, but this one is worth considering:

"Players make coaches look silly. A coach can spend hours telling and showing a player what he wants on the field. Then, after a couple of minutes in a game, the player will forget what he has been told and shown. People watching the game see this, but say: 'The coach must be a fool for having his team play like that.'" — BILL VOJTEK, coach of Green Gully who began his coaching career in 1979, and discovered it's no easy job.

MAKEDONIA WANTS ZORAN ILIOSKI

Victorian State League club Preston Makedonia wants to sign versatile Footscray JUST midfielder Zoran Ilioski.

Manager/coach Tony Vrzina announced this week he would approach Footscray soon about Ilioski, who is believed to be very interested in the move.

"Ilioski is an excellent player, and would easily fit into our team," said Vrzina. "He would also be very popular with Preston's supporters because he is Macedonian."

"I want to sign two top class players for next season to strengthen our team. Ilioski would be a great asset to Preston, because he's a proven Philips League player."

Vrzina added that he hoped Footscray JUST would not place too high a transfer fee on Ilioski.

Ilioski will make his first appearance for Preston Makedonia on Sunday, November 18, in the Terry Luckhurst Benefit game at B.T. Connor Reserve.

The game will give Preston fans to get a 'sneak preview' of Ilioski in club colors before his proposed transfer is finalised.

Ilioski is only one of two Macedonian stars on show during the Luckhurst Benefit. The other is South Melbourne Hellas winger Mendo Ristovski.

The Luckhurst match will give Ristovski a chance to play alongside his old team mate Ilioski when they combine in the Preston team which will take on a PSL All-star XI.

Ilioski and Ristovski were mates at Footscray JUST, but Ristovski had a dispute with the club and was transferred to South Melbourne for $12,000.

The Preston v. All-stars game promises to be a real treat for soccer fans. As well as being a charity exhibition match, there will be some keen contests among the players.

Ristovski and Ilioski will be put out to perform in front of Preston's Macedonian followers. On the other team, former World Cup striking duo Branko Buljevic and Atti Abonyi will combine to show that passing years doesn't necessarily erode goalscoring ability.

Abonyi and Buljevic played against West

Germany, East Germany and Chile in the 1974 World Cup finals, and have been in Australia's soccer elite over the past 10 years.

Abonyi is now player/coach of Sydney Croatia, the 1978 and '79 champion of the NSW State League.

Buljevic makes up a third of the awesome Heidelberg Utd forward line. The other members are Soccerero and Gary Cole and goalscoring king Jamie Paton.

Abonyi will fly down from Sydney for the game as a tribute to Terry Luckhurst, the former Juventus, Ringwood City and Box Hill midfielder who has been made an invalid by the disease motor neurone.

The All-stars have many big names, here is how the All-stars will probably line up: Jack Reilly (Juventus Melbourne) — Mike Pye (South Melbourne Hellas), Jim Kondariou (Footscray JUST), Pat Bannon (Heidelberg Utd), Alan Davidson (South Melbourne Hellas) — Alan Evans (South Melbourne Hellas), Peter Ollerton (Footscray JUST), Joe Picioane (Footscray JUST) — Atti Abonyi (Sydney Croatia), Branko Buljevic (Heidelberg Utd), Jim Campbell (Heidelberg Utd) Reserves: George Campbell (South Melbourne), Peter Laumets (South Melbourne), Brank Culina (Essendon Croatia).

• Preston Makedonia v PSL All-stars at B.T. Connor Reserve, Reservoir, Sunday November 18. Kick off 3 pm. All gate receipts and proceeds from raffles (A quality Mitre soccer ball autographed by Cosmos players, and two Le Coq Sportif trackuits will be raffled at ground) will go to Terry Luckhurst and his family.

• Special guest Raelene Boyle, Australian Olympic star, will kick off the game.

Swedish goalie seeks a club

Swedish goalkeeper John Hansson wants to return to Australian soccer — and he's on a free transfer.

Hansson, who played around 25 games for South Melbourne after joining the club early in 1978, is currently in Sweden waiting for offers from Australia. He has written to Brisbane City, Sydney City, Marconi and Newcastle KB Utd, but says he would join any Phillips or State League club.

Hansson left Australia late in 1978, and then unexpectedly turned up at South Melbourne half way through 1979 and played four league games. However, a mix up over his visa and contract with South Melbourne forced him to return to Sweden.

Last week 'Soccer Action' received a letter from Hansson. In the letter he said: "I recently saw Stuart Baxter, who has left South Melbourne to play in Swedish football and he told me of the new rules regarding foreign players in Australia."

"I have written to a number of Australian clubs, but would like to hear from any team needing a goalkeeper. I'm a free agent, so there are no problems with clearances."

Hansson's address and phone number in Sweden are: Kuarngatan 24b, 268 00 Svalov, Sweden. Phone number: (0418) 63 582

Scots end deadlock

SCOTLAND will end nine years of deadlock and agree to play its British Championship game in Belfast on May 17.

The Scots will use the match as a 'dummy run' for the World Cup qualifier in Northern Ireland, having been told by FIFA that failure to go there would mean expulsion.

Meanwhile England has decided there is no way they can go to Uruguay for next year's World Cup 50th anniversary celebrations.

ROOS ABROAD: INJURIES AND VIOLENCE BUT MOSTLY GLORY

Australia's tour of China should produce new stars, some outstanding results and the inevitable controversies. So it was with previous tours — Vietnam and South East Asia in 1967; Asia, Greece, England and Mexico in 1970; Philippines, Indonesia and South Korea in 1972; China, West Germany, Holland and England in 1976.

The story of Australia's overseas tours is told in "The Socceroos and their Opponents," already recognised as the most comprehensive and most authoritative book yet published about soccer in Australia.

The book also covers our four World Cup campaigns so far, international players past and present, visits to Australia by overseas teams and the most detailed statistics available about games by the national team.
